Our City Comment & discussion

by THOMAS D. WATSON

Are You Careful About Starting Fires On or Near Your Premises?

DOES the fact that Fire Protection Week runs from Oct. 7th to the 13th mean anything to you? Are you observing the city ordinances regarding this matter? These ordinances were enacted just as much for your benefit as for your neighbors. Many a destructive fire has resulted through the carelessness of a citizen in starting a trash fire and leaving it without making certain that it was entirely out.

WE all remember that the great Chicago fire was caused by a cow owned by a Mrs. O'Leary kicking over a lamp.

A recent fire which threatened a large number of homes in Eagle Rock was started through a careless housewife leaving a fire burning in her chicken yard, which spread to the fence and a strong wind sprang up and carried it for miles, burning the entire hillside, many homes being saved only through the strenuous efforts of firemen assisted by many volunteers.

City Ordinance No. 577 covering the regulation of fires reads as follows:

SECTION 1. It shall be unlawful for any person to ignite, set fire to or burn any rubbish, papers, shavings, boxes or other combustible material in or upon any public street, sidewalk, alley or public place in the city of Glendale.

SECTION 2. It shall be unlawful for any person to ignite, set fire to or burn any rubbish, paper, shavings, boxes or other combustible material at any place within twenty-five (25) feet of any building or structure of any kind.

SECTION 3. Any person violating any of the provisions of this ordinance shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine of not more than three hundred dollars, or by imprisonment in the city jail, or the county jail of the county of Los Angeles, for a period of not more than three months, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

YOU will notice that this ordinance prohibits the burning of any combustible material on any public street, sidewalk, alley or public place.

It also specifically states that a fire, even on your own premises, shall not be built any closer than 25 feet to any building or structure of any kind.

On account of Glendale being located with hills on all sides, citizens should use more care than under other circumstances. With the hot California sun pouring down upon it dead brush turns into a tinder pile and with a wind to aid a fire starting therein spreads very quickly.

JUDGE LOWE today levied another stiff fine to an individual pleading guilty to reckless driving, the amount being the same as the last, $250.

In a recent editorial we commended the Judge on his levying such a stiff fine. One of our readers in commenting on this editorial suggested that the fine was not high enough considering the circumstances.

We agree with this reader and we are inclined to believe that the Judge does also. That the fine was not higher was not the fault of Judge Lowe, as he went the limit. If a stiffer fine should be given the law governing the offense will have to be amended. However, we are inclined to believe that a fine of $250 for reckless driving will soon cool the ardor of the guilty drivers.

A DRIVER who knowingly breaks the law is entitled to no leniency and the sooner he learns to respect the law in driving in or through Glendale the better.

WEST GLENDALIANS TO DISCUSS SEWER. At 8 o'clock tonight Tuesday the West Glendale Improvement association will meet at the Columbus avenue school to discuss the sewer proposition.

FORMER CAL. GOVERNOR DIES. PASADENA, Cal., Oct. 9.—Henry Harrison Markham, governor of California from 1891 to 1895, died suddenly at his home here today. He was 83 years of age. He leaves a widow, Mary A. Markham, and four children, Mrs. Benjamin E. Page, Mrs. Donald West and the Misses Gertrude and Alice Markham. Funeral arrangements have not yet been made.

REALTORS' GREAT CARAVAN OFF TO CONVENTION

Nearly Five Hundred Attend First Teachers' Institute of the Year

INSTITUTE DRAWS NEARLY 500 TEACHERS

Good Music, Splendid Addresses, Good Eats Are Features

It was hard to say which was of greatest interest, the audience of teachers numbering between 400 and 500 which assembled at the Glendale High school Monday for the inspiration to be gained from a teachers' district institute, or the speakers provided by the office of County Superintendent Keppel and introduced by the assistant superintendent, Mr. Upjohn. At the morning session Principal George U. Moyle of the high school presided, and at the afternoon meeting which convened at 1:30, Superintendent Richardson D. White did the honors.

Three numbers by the high school orchestra directed by Mrs. Dora Gibson, embellished the session before lunch, the three being "Democracy Triumphant" (West), "Polish Dance" (Wienlawski) with encore, and "Star Spangled Banner" which was also sung by the entire company. The girls' glee club, directed by Mrs. Florence Parker sang: "I Know a Lovely Garden" (D'Hordet) and "The Sweet O' the Year" (Mary Turner Salter). In the afternoon Miss Mildred Hughey, the new assistant supervisor of music in the city schools led in community singing.

At the close of the afternoon program Coach Normal Hayhurst invited the teacher guests to have a friendly cup of punch with the Teachers' club of Glendale High, and a pleasant half hour was spent around the table over which Miss Helen Halgrove and an assisting committee presided.

E. Morris Cox, assistant superintendent of schools in Oakland, made a fine talk on "The Present Crisis in Education" in which he quoted the most common current criticisms of the schools of the country and successfully answered them.

Ray Cloud of Redwood City, superintendent San Mateo county, was the principal speaker in the afternoon and proved unusual in his whimsical charm and kindly philosophy. He impressed one as the enthusiast for education and for teaching methods rather than a scholar, and it is stimulating men of his type who seem to be chosen for the missionary work of teachers' institutes. The point he stressed most was the personal responsibility resting upon the teacher to leave his impress on the pupil as an influence which will convert that pupil into a good citizen. Above the thoroughness with which the curriculum is taught he rated the guiding influence of a good teacher's personality. He brought it home in a variety of striking and amusing ways.

The second speaker of the afternoon was Melvin Neel, a member of the board of education of Long Beach who, in addition to his other school work, has undertaken to superintend a group of rural schools in which he is interested near Saugus in the Antelope valley. He spoke on the viewpoint of boards of education in engaging teachers and declared the thing they are looking for is the young heart whether it is lodged in the breast of a teacher of 60 or 20 years. It is not a matter of years or experience, he said. Another thing urged was loyalty on the part of principals toward teachers and on the part of teachers towards principals, as team work he considers the greatest factor in the development of good schools.

GLENDALE REALTORS, 25 STRONG ON THE WING FOR BIG CONVENTION

Amid Pandemonium of Yells, Cat Calls, Shrieking Horns and Other Melodious Noises They Make Start at 6 a. m. for Sacramento

GLENDALE CONTINGENT IS A NOISY BUNCH

Are Joined at Montrose by Delegations From East and at San Fernando by Remainder of Southern California Folk, Forming One Big Caravan

By ALBERT MARPLE
Glendale Press Representative at the Realtors' Convention at Sacramento

The realtors in the Glendale delegation to Sacramento include Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Thom, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Twining, Mr. and Mrs. J. I. Wernette, Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Guthrie, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ingledue, Mr. and Mrs. William MacMullin, Mr. and Mrs. S. S. Gihuly, Dr. Jessie A. Russell, who has charge of the Glendale delegation of the caravan; Mrs. E. L. Foor, Peter Hanson, E. P. Hayward, Walter Jones, Hal Russell, Miss Winnifred Traver, officer secretary of the Glendale Realty Board; C. T. Rich of the Glendale News, Mrs. Rich and Albert Marple of the Glendale Press staff.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Horn will leave Wednesday morning for Sacramento and after the close of the convention will visit friends in the north, as will also Mr. and Mrs. Thom and Mr. and Mrs. Wernette.

BAKERSFIELD, Oct. 9.—The Glendale birds were just beginning to chirp their cheerful "good morning" in the foliage of Rossmoyne, Verdugo Woodlands, and the remainder of the beautiful Verdugo canyon as the realtors, almost thirty strong, on their way to Sacramento, wended their way from Brand, between Broadway and Harvard street, up Brand to Doran, east on Doran to Glendale avenue, north on Glendale avenue to Verdugo and north on Verdugo to Montrose. Through the town of Montrose the caravan went and up to the intersection of Montrose and Michigan, where they joined the delegations of realtors from Pasadena, Alhambra, Monrovia, Azusa and San Gabriel. There were a half hundred cars from the section east of Glendale and all of them were filled with boosters for their home cities.

When the bunch of Glendale realtors left this city the people were aware of the fact. When they were not making one kind of noise they were making another that was just a little worse. They started from the office of President Thom of the Glendale board at 8:15 in high spirits. If they continue throughout the trip with the same noise and enthusiasm with which they started the folks along the one thousand miles of route will be aware of the fact that Glendale is in California and is up and doing.

After meeting the delegations from the country east of Glendale at Montrose the entire caravan journeyed over Michigan boulevard through the beautiful La Crescent Valley to San Fernando. M. V. Hartranft, one of the leading realtors in this section of the country who lives in Tujunga, joined the party at that place.

At San Fernando the caravan was made up—or rather the realtors who were waiting at that place, "fell in" at the rear of the first section, which ranged as follows: Pasadena and Alhambra, first; the San Gabriel delegation, second; Glendale, third; the other delegations which gathered from Los Angeles, Santa Monica, Redondo, Hollywood and the other Southern California cities followed. San Diego realtors journeyed from their home city to San Fernando on Monday, remaining over night at that place. Early Tuesday morning they were up and ready to continue their trip north.

After the forming of the caravan the journey northward was resumed. Out over the Newhall grade went the several hundred cars, and through Newhall and on to Saugus. At that point it turned to the left, taking the road to the Ridge route. Fifteen minutes later the Ridge was encountered and for a space of two hours the cars almost did the merry-go-round stunt. Someone has said there are an even three thousand curves on the ridge and there isn't one of the caravan that will doubt that assertion.

Down off the ridge to Bailey's ranch went the caravan, past the Bailey Lake which for years has produced some mighty good hunting for the duck hunters of this section.

Bailey's ranch was soon left behind and after crossing another ridge we passed Chandler's place, which was for years conducted by L. O. Chandler, who is well known in Glendale. Mr. Chandler said that place recently and is now back at his old Glendale stamping ground.

At shortly after 11 o'clock we reached Lebec, that half way house between Bakersfield and Los Angeles, where a short rest was enjoyed. During the past few months Mr. Curry of Camp Curry of Yosemite fame, who purchased the camp something like a year ago, has made wonderful changes in the place. We hardly knew it, having not seen it since the hand of Mr. Curry started to "cut out here and add to there." A beautiful hotel has been constructed and a large number of pretty little cottages dot the level spaces and the hillsides.

Down the Tejon pass traveled the caravan and at the foot of the grade the 30-mile stretch of concrete, in which there is only one turn, was reached. This led the party into Bakersfield, where the much-wanted dinner was enjoyed.

From where we now stand it looks like a big time. The boys and girls from our little home town are holding their own. When it comes to noise you simply can't outshine them. All along the line can be heard such expressions as: "Gee, isn't that Glendale outfit a noisy bunch?"

But such things are said in good spirit and those who say them end with something like this: "Well, I suppose they have a right to make a noise. They sure have something mighty good to make a noise about."

UNUSUAL NUMBER OF DRUNKS TAKEN IN BY OFFICERS

Judge Lowe Says the Stuff Consumed Is Very Deadly

Records at the Glendale police department confirmed by the cases on the docket of Judge Lowe show an unusual harvest of drunks this week. Monday night at 11 Sergeant Lauritzen and Officers Claxton, Collins and Armer arrested Binford of 310 North Jackson charged with reckless driving and drunkenness, respectively. Their car was taken to a garage, the two men were lodged in the city jail, and the bottle of liquor placed in safe. Binford was released this morning on $30 bail and Mackenzie held for hearing today at 10 a. m. before Judge Lowe. When before the bar he pleaded guilty and was fined $250.

F. W. Chandler of 6635 Leland way was reported by Cypress avenue residents Monday night as sitting in a stationary car drunk. Officers Hamilton and Lauritzen arrested the man, who was lodged in jail over night and released on $30 bail this morning.

E. J. Edwards, L. Peterson, George H. Terry and Mrs. Terry of Los Angeles and San Francisco, arrested Sunday, had a hearing Monday morning before Judge Lowe on the charge of drunkenness and were each fined $20.

In commenting on these cases Judge Lowe said: "The number of drunks arrested does not indicate that more liquor is being consumed but rather that the stuff is so deadly that the brains of the drinkers are paralyzed before they know it. Forty-five pint bottles recently confiscated in North Glendale contained a milky substance not yet clarified that was about 100 per cent alcohol. It had not been aged nor had any taste of been taken from it. That is the kind of stuff the illicit stills are turning out. Before the days of prohibition there was no temptation to the manufacture of illicit stuff and the product turned out by the legitimate manufacturers was all subject to inspection and test. I think President Coolidge's idea of calling the governors together to work out some uniform plan of enforcement of the prohibition law will have good results."

Musical Burglars Invade Matthews Home

The realization that a burglar was playing the piano was the awakening sensation of Mr. and Mrs. F. Matthews, 325 South Fischer, last night. The Matthews' family having retired early were enjoying peaceful dreams when suddenly they were disturbed by some one entering the home and playing the piano. The guardian instinct in Mr. Matthews prompted him to make efforts to protect his property against the intruders. Scantly garbed in evening clothes he ventured forth, prepared to fight his way out or combat with the burglars, only to find that friends returning home from an evening out had decided to pay them a social call and finding the front door unwatched and the house in quietness proceeded to entertain themselves with a little music.

After convincing the Matthews' that it was unnecessary to place heavy burglar insurance on their belongings an enjoyable time was spent in music and story telling.

Refreshments were served and the so-called musical burglars departed wishing the Matthews' sweet dreams and advising them to install an up-to-date burglar system.

ALL DAY MEETING OF MISSIONARY FEDERATION HELD

Federated missionary societies of the Glendale district had a very interesting and profitable all-day meeting Monday at the Casa Verdugo Methodist church, the president of the organization, Mrs. Z. L. Hesse, presiding.

Mrs. Schulte of the Congregational church of this city, led the morning devotional exercises and in the afternoon, Mrs. Collins of the First Methodist church.

A short business session in the forenoon was followed by an address by Mrs. W. N. Weller of Los Angeles on lepers' hospitals, based on her personal observations in China, Japan, Korea, Egypt and other oriental countries, and the collection of the day, which amounted to about $20, was devoted to that cause. Vocal duets were contributed by Mrs. John D. Cotton and Mrs. Jones of the hostess church.

A luncheon together and social hour was enjoyed at noon and when the federation was called to order in the afternoon the various societies represented submitted reports of the year's work.

Mrs. Fred Hagen, a missionary who has served in Japan, gave a delightful talk on the study book of the year, "Creative Forces in Japan," giving side lights on the book based on her experience and knowledge of the Japanese people.

At the close of her talk Mrs. Floyd Mercer sang delightfully.

The closing prayer was made by Mrs. E. E. Ford, wife of the pastor of the First Baptist church of Glendale.

About 40 were present at the two sessions.

The board of directors will meet again next Monday to further perfect the organization, consider by-laws and confirm the appointment of committees.

Strong for Sewer, Insist That Tracks Be at Grade

Discussion of sewer contract. Lowering of tracks and improving roadbed on Brand boulevard from California avenue to the north city limits.

Opening of Burchett street.

These were three of the vital matters taken up for discussion at an important meeting of the Brand Boulevard Improvement association held Monday night at 105 West Broadway with Mattison B. Jones presiding. The association, which includes all property owners on Brand from the extreme north to the extreme south city limits, unanimously adopted a motion approving of the sewer contract and urging the people of Glendale to vote the necessary bonds.

The association also unanimously asked that a committee of five confer with the Pacific Electric railway with the view of lowering the tracks and improving the right-of-way from California to the north city limits at the earliest possible moment. The committee will include Mattison B. Jones, Dr. E. H. Parker, Julius Kranz, Godfrey Edwards and H. F. Metcalf. This committee will call upon the railway officials at an early date and ascertain what terms the property owners and the Pacific Electric can agree upon for this improvement.

The association was instrumental in securing the lowering of the tracks from Colorado street to Windsor road. After the securing of this improvement from California avenue north the next step will be that of lowering the tracks from Windsor road to the southern city limits.

The association considered various plans for the opening of Burchett street, although no definite action or recommendation was approved. The next meeting of the association will be on the call of the president.

FULL PROGRAM OF AMERICAN LEGION REUNION, FRISCO

Ninety-first Plans Mon- ster Get-together Meeting

Determined to eclipse any reunion ever given by a veteran organization in the United States, committees numbering over five hundred former members of the 91st (Wild West) Division are at work completing details for the monster get-together of that famous wartime division which will be held in San Francisco Saturday and Sunday, October 13 and 14.

Indications point to an attendance of over six thousand of these veterans who received their baptism of fire in the Meuse-Argonne offensive in France and also participated in the St. Michel and Lys Scheldt operations as part of the First American Army during the World war.

The main feature of the reunion is to be the Divisional dinner in the Civic Auditorium on Saturday evening, October 13.

On this occasion nearly four thousand vets will be served at one sitting, making it the largest indoor banquet ever held on the Pacific Coast. The number of waiters hired for the affair would be sufficient to make up a wartime company of infantry.

Entertainment composed of acts from nearly all of San Francisco's theatres will be interspersed with special stunts by versatile members of the division.

Mail orders for tickets, which will be $3.00 per plate for this affair, may be placed with J. M. Cahen, chairman, banquet committee, 19 Kearny street, San Francisco.

The following is the full program for the reunion as announced by the committee:

Saturday, October 13
9:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m.—Registration of former members of 91st Division at Municipal Auditorium, Civic Center.

12:30 p. m.—Meeting of executive committee. Luncheon parties.
7:00 p. m.—Division dinner—all units, of division—in main hall, Municipal Auditorium.

During the day, sight-seeing trips and automobile rides will be operated for benefit of those desiring to see the city. Informal gatherings and get-together meetings will be held.

Sunday, October 14
9:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m.—Sight-seeing trips for visitors.

11:00 a. m.—Business meetings of various regimental and unit organizations.
12:30 p. m. to 1:30 p. m.—Organic meal in Municipal Auditorium.

1:30 p. m.—Business meeting of 91st Division association. Election of officers—in main hall of Municipal Auditorium. Speeches of welcome by prominent public officials.

The film "The 91st Division in Action" will be shown following the business meeting.

7:00 p. m.—Dinners by separate regimental organizations in downtown cafes.
Identification certificates making one fare round trip tickets available to members of the division and their families may be obtained by applying to James I. Henry, 353 Bush street, San Francisco. Reduced fare tickets on sale at all railroad offices, October 6 to 15, inclusive, limited for return to November 15.

Mills and were unanimously elected. The history of the company was given by director W. S. Salisbury. Other directors making short talks were W. R. Scully and A. M. Brown. At a directors' meeting following the annual meeting A. M. Brown was elected president, C. L. Mead, vice-president; W. M. Mills, secretary; A. V. Adkins, of the Montrose State Bank, treasurer. In a short talk at the close of the meeting, Dr. E. N. Nettleton, who has been president of the board for the past two years, and is now retiring, commented on his pleasant association with the board, and complimented E. L. Rider, the superintendent of the Crescenta Mutual Water company for his efficiency and faithfulness to the company. The splendid service of the retiring secretary, A. V. Adkins, and the pleasant relations with the Montrose State Bank, where the office of the company has been for the past nine months. At the suggestion of Rev. H. A. Kelso, a rising vote of thanks was given the board of directors. The Crescenta Mutual Water Co. are fortunate in securing W. M. Mills as a successor to Dr. Nettleton, as Mr. Mills was secretary to the Crescenta Mutual Water company since its organization up to the first of this year.

H. L. MILLER CO. IS IN ITS 17TH YEAR IN GLENDALE

As "in the midst of life we are in death," so, also, in the midst of the greatest security we are likely to be confronted with a great fire loss. We may wrap ourselves in fancied security and say to ourselves, "Such a loss can never come to me," but sooner or later it does come.

How one congratulates himself at such a time on having been forehanded enough to take out insurance on the property he has just seen go up in smoke. The yearly or three-yearly payments made on the policy divide into insignificance when you think of them.

This reminds us that the H. L. Miller company is waiting to write you a policy on that new house or on the old one if you have neglected to take out one. Mr. Miller has been in business in Glendale for a long period of years and has on his list 17 reliable companies, 14 of them independent. No vexatious delays in having your losses adjusted. It is all done promptly and the money paid over at once so you can start rebuilding immediately. Truly the H. L. Miller company is appropriately called the "Old Reliable."

IT IS NOW DUNCAN & HENRY, REAL ESTATE

ATWATER P.-T. A. HOLDS OPENING MEETING MONDAY

As a special feature of the opening meeting the members of the Atwater Parent-Teacher association adopted a budget covering the year's work of the organization which convened at the school Monday afternoon with Mrs. E. V. Bacon presiding. The budget contains appropriations for the purchase of a motion picture machine and screen, phonograph records and other much needed things for the school such as that of furnishing the rest room, etc.

One of the first things planned to raise money for the budget is a paper drive to be held a week from Wednesday. The children will collect the newspapers from their parents and friends and bring them to the school grounds. The officers of the Atwater Parent-Teacher association includes Mrs. E. V. Bacon, president; Mrs. C. E. Rathbone, vice-president; Mrs. L. W. Pennock, recording secretary; Mrs. Larkin, corresponding secretary; Miss Kathryn FitzSimons, treasurer; Mrs. Dale Vaughan, auditor; Mrs. Mabel Daniels, historian. Committee chairmen that have been appointed include: Mrs. Lupo, hospitality; Mrs. McKenzie, membership; Miss Clinton, patriotic; Mrs. Wray, philanthropy; Mrs. Bennett, civics; board of directors, ways and means; Mrs. Clouse, publicity.

Miss Clinton led in the salute to the flag, after which the program was turned over to Miss Gates, who introduced Miss Polley, one of the music supervisors of the city schools. Miss Gates also outlined briefly a list of speakers who will give talks at the association meetings during the year.

Miss Polley gave a demonstration of some of the music appreciation work being done in the lower primary and also the A4 and B4 grades. She stated "the children are taught to learn to listen, so that later they may be prepared to listen to learn." In illustration of the points brought out in her talk she played various selections on the phonograph, telling part of the story and letting the children listen for the music to tell them the remainder. Following her demonstration Miss Polley announced that during the year another music memory contest would be held in the Los Angeles schools, in which it was hoped the Atwater avenue pupils would participate.

Miss Gates stated that a membership drive would be started for the Atwater association and plans were being made to have it in the form of a contest between the various rooms as to which would secure the most new members. At the next meeting there will be a question box where any questions regarding school matters will be deposited and taken up later for discussion.

CHORAL SOCIETY'S FIRST REHEARSAL MONDAY NIGHT

Unusually gratifying was the large number of people who attended the first regular rehearsal meeting of the recently organized Glendale Choral society, which is under the auspices of Glendale Community Service, held Monday night at the high school. There were sixty prominent singers of Glendale present. Mrs. Alex Mitchell is president of the society and Dr. John Anderson is vice president. J. Arthur Myers is the very able director. The accompanist is Mrs. Gertrude Champlin Erb. Already over 100 have signed up as members of the Choral society, which speaks well for the need of such an organization.

A. L. Baird, chairman of the music committee of Glendale Community Service, was present and gave a short talk. An hour and a half was spent working on "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast." The members of the society are preparing to present this work for production the latter part of November. Those present at Monday night's rehearsal were very enthusiastic over the way things are shaping.

The Glendale Choral society will continue meeting every Monday night at 8 o'clock. On account of the large membership the meetings will be held in the high school auditorium. All experienced singers in Glendale are invited to attend and become members.

The production of "Hiawatha's Wedding Feast" will be followed up by work on special Christmas music.

HOME NURSING and HEALTH HINTS

FOOTBALL AND IODINE

John Henry rushed out of the schoolroom with a shout and a bang, leaped down the stairs three at a time and vaulted over the gate.

He was on his way to the football field. His team was having a real try-out and John Henry left full care behind with every leap and bound.

It was a wild game and some of the boys were fighting mad by the time it was over. Perhaps that was why the accident occurred.

No one seemed quite sure how it had happened when John Henry, in the midst of a tangled heap of boys all fighting for the ball, failed to get up from the muddy ground.

Frightened, the other boys forgot the ball and stood around silently. John Henry lay white and still with blood streaming from a gash on his arm and a big black and blue lump on his forehead.

"It was a glass bottle neck—buried in the mud! Lookie!" Tim Burns, trying to stop the bleeding from the cut on John Henry's arm, held up the broken neck of a bottle.

"Gee, that's a nasty one. What you fellows going to do about it?" asked Willie Lane. "I've got some iodine in my pocket, one of those first aid packages my brother brought home from the war. I've been carrying it around for a souvenir—but if it is any good—"

Kneeling in the mud the boys tore open the package with a fine disregard for the sterilized contents. And dabbed iodine freely on the wounded arm. The iodine was old, and much stronger than it had been fresh. The boys applied it generously.

"Here, this is clean water. I got it from the pump. Wring her out in this and wind it round his arm," said the boy who had a clean handkerchief. "Her" being the handkerchief. They put a nice cool wet bandage on the wounded arm and splashed water in John Henry's face until he opened his eyes and said, "Here you! Stop that!"

John Henry's arm grew more and more painful and by the time he had been escorted home in the grocer's wagon, commandeered for the occasion by his friends, he could scarcely stand the pain.

His mother, hastily removing the wet bandages, explained to the boys that the skin must never be moist when iodine is applied because moisture increases the irritant action of iodine. A burn results. The burn must be treated quickly, the iodine being first removed with diluted ammonia water, and a soothing dressing, preferably of oil and starch applied. Castor oil and corn starch in equal parts makes a suitable application if there is nothing better at hand. But all traces of iodine must first be removed.

The proper way to apply iodine is on an applicator or wool sponge, allowing it to dry before covering it up.

hard candy with sharp flavors. A lime lollypop is apparently a good substitute for a glass of beer.

One manufacturer says he has standing orders to send certain kinds of candy to the offices of many men every week. According to this manufacturer these men not only eat the candy openly but actually pass it around to men who call upon them in the course of their business transactions. It is also revealed that Mr. Lasker, until recently head of the Shipping Board, sent 100 pounds of Mr. Harding's favorite caramels to our late president on his last vacation in Florida. The names of many other prominent men and their special confectionery affinities are also disclosed.

Perhaps the war had something to do with all this. Some friends of mine who were in the service tell me they formed the habit because sugar was scarce in France while candy was shipped across the ocean in great quantities.

Reservations for the plates which cost 75c should be made through Mrs. Willis Lusby at 416 Riverdale Drive.

Chocolate often was a substitute for food.

My motto is "Sweets for and to the sweet." But candy should not become an affliction. It is considered good food for women to eat candy at a theater. However, I never want to see a man sucking a lollypop during the progress of a thrilling play.

Nor do I want one to say, as many men who do not drink say, they did before prohibition say, that he can take a bon bon or leave it alone.

University graduates as policeman of tomorrow is the prediction of August Vollmer, Los Angeles chief of police, noted as one of the foremost criminologists in the United States, who was the main speaker at the university assembly at Southern Branch Wednesday afternoon. That a thorough knowledge of human behavior and training in psychology, physiology and other sciences relating to the working of man's mind and body, will be prerequisites for police service in the future is the hope and belief of Chief Vollmer.

Dreams of a university swimming pool, which have been in the air for about 15 months at Southern Branch, will soon become realities. Ground was broken for a pool, just northwest of the men's gym, on Wednesday morning.

Inter-fraternity athletic contests at Southern Branch will soon be a reality as a result of plans formulated at a meeting of the Inter-Fraternity council, Wednesday evening, at the Delta Phi Pi house.

Full support of the U. C. S. B. student body at the California-U. S. C. game is assured by receipt of the news that a special rate on tickets to the big struggle is available to local students. By reason of this concession on the part of the Berkeley officials, admission will be but $1.50 instead of $2, the regular tariff.

A rooting section alongside the Student number 4000 arrived at U. C. S. B. Thursday, October 4, amid a blare of trumpets and great rejoicing. Eugene Richardson is the young man's name and he hails from Pecos, Texas. Just why he left his native state for the purpose of seeking an education in California is not known. Richardson is registered at the college of letters and science and belongs to the class of '27.

The long-awaited increase of the Southern Branch enrollment to the 4000 mark having finally been reached, better conditions for the university are certain to follow. The four thousandth student is in the limelight today. Several cameramen for local dailies snapped his features for publication when the informal reception was held at 9:30 o'clock yesterday. Cheering students stood around, and Dr. Ernest C. Moore held a sign on which was emblazoned the magic letters, "Number 4000."

Just what is left for the Branch next to look forward to is uncertain. Perhaps it will be arrival of the five thousandth student, or even better, the arrival of the fourth year.

Senator Simmons was talking about the tariff war between Spain and France. "These two nations are hurting each other so ingeniously through their tariffs," he said, "that it reminds me of little Willie. Little Willie pointed at his sister's sweetheart, Mr. Jones. 'Mr. Jones kicked me yesterday,' he snarled, 'but I got even with him, you bet your life. I mixed up quinine with my sister's face powder.'"

Margaret has a habit of taking off her shoes and stockings while out at play, although her mother objects. "The other day Margaret came in again barefooted."

"Why did you do that?" asked her mother.

"Well, mother," said the little girl, "I have to cold my feet—they get so hot."

Truths in Epigram

This dead of night is the noon of thought, and Wisdom mounts her zenith with the stars.—Mrs. Barbauld.

Our ancestors are a very good kind of folk; but they are the last people I should choose to have a speaking acquaintance with.—Sheridan.

A talent may be perfected in solitude, a character only in the world.—Wolfgang Von Goethe.

GEORGE ON PEACE

"Peace can only be restored by full recognition of the equities as well as the humanities," says Lloyd George. He might have expressed so great and familiar a truth more grammatically, but the idea is clear. He means that peace can be restored only by full recognition such as he suggests.

This utterance does not furnish ground for a very substantial hope. George is out of office, and is directing such power as he possesses into channels where it is likely to be lost utterly. Moreover, there is nothing of record to indicate that when he held the reins he was more devoted to the equities than were the diplomats with whom he associated amicably or otherwise. Every such diplomatist represented selfish interests. He wanted to get for his own country not merely all that belonged to it, but all that was within reach. Diplomacy does not operate along the line indicated by the Golden Rule. It did not so operate in any measure while George was the operator.

The George ministry made possible the war between Greece and Turkey. Such was his regard for public opinion that the premier did this secretly. There is no indication that he was inspired then by devotion to the equities. What he thought he saw was a chance to have chestnuts pulled from the fire, leaving his own paws unscathed.

High-flown language exalting the equities does not mean anything. It is not new, and coming from a diplomatic source, it is not sincere. Anybody is able to point out a course in consonance with justice and with integrity of morals, but no nation of Europe is ready to take the course.

WHEN AMBASSADORS RESIGN

The resignations of Ambassadors Harvey and Child do not cause the least surprise. Each of the gentlemen gives his reason for retirement as pressing personal business. Each is said to have presented a resignation to President Harding, so that the severance of official ties now is but the carrying out of a policy in which the late President had acquiesced, but with regret. However, it is possible that other reasons exist. It could not be considered strange if a new President were to have a personal choice for stations of such high importance. Both Mr. Harvey and Mr. Child have served with great credit.

The position of ambassador to England or Italy is so expensive to maintain that only a rich man could afford to take it, and even one of great wealth might grow weary of the vast expenditure. The salary might be satisfactory at home, being more than received by a member of the cabinet. At a foreign court it is wholly inadequate, little more indeed than the proverbial "drop in the bucket."

Mr. Harvey has had an unusually strenuous official term. A man of many friends and many enemies as well, and prior to his appointment, an active figure in national politics, he naturally became the target of a portion of the press. He undertook his duties while the after-the-war period was still unsettled, and the outcome vague. His duties thus became more than ordinarily important. It is not to be said of him that he failed in performing them. He made some very frank speeches to the English that at the time seemed to savor of indiscretion, but produced no unhappy results.

A PACIFIC COAST EDUCATOR

Californians have the right to feel a thrill of pride over the distinguished honor that has fallen to Prof. Millikan of the California Institute of Technology. He has received the Edison medal, which is the highest award that can be bestowed by the electrical engineers of America. It was won by the success of his experiments in research pertaining to electrons, atomic measurements, and light rays.

California Tech, which is the common appellation of the school located in Pasadena, formerly Throop college, has grown into high repute, gathering to its class rooms instructors of world-wide fame. It is now esteemed to be on a plane with Boston Tech. While its facilities for scientific training have brought students from all parts of the world, Prof. Millikan, himself devoted to research, is being sustained in every effort for advancing scientific knowledge. Millions of dollars have been given to California Tech in the past few months for buildings, equipment and endowments. The physical results are discernible in finer and larger structures and increased attendance. But the real spirit of the great school is revealed by achievements of some of which the electrical engineers have just taken cognizance.

THE PASSIVE OFFENDER

In the effort to close undesirable resorts, a plan is favored for arresting patrons when raids are made. The argument against this is that the patrons might be innocent of evil intent, merely being present as spectators. Indeed, there is the possibility that they might have been slumming either with high moral intent, or to see how the other half lived. Opposed to this view is the fact that if the resorts had no patrons, there would be no resorts.

Many crimes give evidence of a dual immorality, and yet often but one of the actors is held amenable to punishment. The man who takes a bribe is punished, while the other giving the bribe, who is the real instigator of the affair, goes free. When a resort is known to be of dubious character, the people who enter it must partake of that character. If they have strayed in ignorance, the place for them to be vindicated is in court.

In every city there are places where criminals gather, where illicit liquors are to be found, and not infrequently the purveyors of drugs ply their deadly vocations. Most of the persons entering such a place are participating voluntarily in its activities. They could have no other object in being there. If so simple as to have been lured in, they naturally would feel grateful to the police for hauling them out even by utilizing so mean a conveyance as a patrol wagon. The public is entitled to protection against such training schools of vice, even though the methods of protection be embarrassing in individual cases.

In the news rooms of the New York World there used to be in the days of Joseph Pulitzer, placards bearing the words "Accuracy! Tenseness! Accuracy!" and the signature "J. P." Perhaps it would be well for certain Los Angeles papers to put up something similar. The other day a dangerous elephant was killed in the suburbs. One morning paper gave a circumstantial account of the affair as a hanging, and another told of it in detail as a shooting. But there was a bad elephant, and it was killed in some manner, possibly by poison.

The recent killing of a bricklayer by falling six stories inside the building in construction of which he was engaged, would indicate that one ordinary precaution had been overlooked. It is the general custom now to seal each floor as a building rises so as to render impossible an interior fall for a greater distance than one story.

A woman with her maid acting in accord can outwit a dozen men.

A HINT TO WOMEN

By ESTELLE LAWTON LINDSEY

Mary Austin, the distinguished writer, in a recent magazine had an interesting article in which she attempted to explain the apathy of women in all countries where they have recently—say in the last 10 years—secured the ballot.

Briefly her conclusion was that woman had decided that they did not understand men, and now were pausing for a better grasp of a man-made world before launching any more attempts to change it, which, in a way, is probably true.

Perhaps two men can help them take the next step.

Captain Richard Pearson Hobson is busy about the country directing against the drug traffic the thunders of his oratory. America is using annually 36 grains of opiates against England's three, France's four and Germany's two, he points out.

All right, that's statistical. And no informed person will deny that we have an international drug ring that is well high invincible.

Captain Hobson says that a carrier pigeon can bring in enough drugs to keep a group of addicts supplied for a long time and a single airplane can smuggle into the United States enough dope to supply the entire Pacific coast for a year.

Manifestly we can't keep carrier pigeons out of the country or stop all the airplanes. We must get at the root of drug addiction. It can't be stopped with police or even armies.

But the women can if they will stop it, or at least materially reduce its menace. How?

Let the second man tell you. His name is Courtenay de Kalb, and in a recent number of the Manufacturers Record he makes the bald statement that drug addiction is sweeping the world because people are hungry. Hungry also is producing the wildness of the young, the craze for bizarre amusements and much of the crime.

Details can't be given here, but the hunger comes from two causes, insufficient income and a dearth of foods that properly nourish.

To increase the income of the average family and to educate women to a scientific understanding of food values is, therefore, to strike the only blow at the dope ring. Well nourished, normal people do not crave narcotics.

Here is the hint to women. Here at hand is their big work, their vital contribution to racial betterment, the use to which they all may with benefit apply their franchise.

Anybody who doubts the general adulteration of foods has only to walk through a grocery and read the labels on food packages. I counted them yesterday, the names of substitutes, the trade names set on packages instead of the true names of simple foods; and as I counted them I gasped. And then I went and talked to a man who once served on the state board of health, and gasped again.

Women are the natural custodians of family food; they have given up the business to men to handle for profit.

Let them think it over. The masses must have food that will nourish or they will have drugs that kill. In the face of this any woman complain that life holds no work for her to do; that politics has no place where she can function?

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

It's a pity there isn't some way of turning on the juice in the human brain, just as one does in a car. Too many of us go through life with our mental wiring improperly insulated. Sometimes we get a short circuit. Sometimes the battery appears to go dead.

In other words, too many of us don't think. Hardly one of us but has an opportunity to better himself right at his elbow. But—to carry the automobile simile further—we must go into the ditch before we can see it.

"If I had money," Tom Kimberley used to say, "I'd start a pig farm. I believe in pigs. What this country needs is more and better pork."

Tom had a job, a wife, two kids and a tin can he called a car. So he couldn't start the farm. Then he fell sick and was ordered out of the office. He rented a little place in the country and bought a few pigs. To keep his mind off his sickness he watched those pigs as though he were a little brother. He studied their appetites, antipathies, acquired and ancestral habits. When the day came for the sacrifice Tom converted them into home cured sausage and old fashioned smoked hams and bacon and peddled his pork himself to men he knew to be gourmets. Now his home town can't get enough of Tom's pork products. He has made a fortune.

The ridiculous part of this story is that the opportunity had been waiting—no, clamoring—at Tom's elbow for years.

But he couldn't turn on the juice. He had to wait to be wrecked before he accelerated.

Most of us live right alongside opportunity. But we don't turn on the juice.

THE LISTENING POST

The editor of this Listening Post is off on a journey.

Such as he made two years ago. Among the miners and steel workers of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company of Colorado.

JAMES W. FOLEY

It is not a journey of propaganda.

Except the propaganda of good work and good cheer and good friendship and good spirit and good hope.

And if that be propaganda, we will hope to make the most of it.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company employs some fifteen thousand men in Colorado.

Where the mines are. Of this number five to six thousand are at Pueblo.

Where are steel works. Turning out thirty-five hundred different products of steel.

Among that number of men are some fifty nationalities.

And all are working at mining or in the steel industry or in some allied work.

The nails that hold together the orange boxes in Southern California come from Pueblo.

Along with hundreds of other articles of steel.

For the steel works is a busy place.

The Colorado Fuel and Iron company is owned largely by the Rockefeller.

A very remarkable family.

Who do some wonderful work in industry. If you do not believe it, ask some employee of the Standard Oil company what he thinks of his job and his employers.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Colorado Fuel and Iron company is and has been losing money for many years, there is no slack method tolerated.

No failure to promote welfare work.

The hospital at Pueblo is one of the finest in the west.

And all through the camps are recreation buildings.

Where consistent effort is made to promote friendliness, good nature, understanding and better relations.

The vice-president of the company in charge of welfare and personnel is A. H. Lichty.

Formerly executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in the central department of the United States at the time of the war.

When we were all wondering what would happen.

And how things would come out.

The editor of this Listening Post met him while he (the editor) was in the work of making little humorous and philosophical and friendly platform addresses.

Which he did to some two hundred thousand men.

Over a period of seventeen months.

Lichty went from war work to welfare work for the Rockefellers.

And he has made a conspicuous success of it.

As he did of war work.

And two years ago he invited the editor of this Listening Post to come over and spend two weeks and talk to men and women and children in the camps and schools and other places.

It was a delightful experience.

Warm friendliness.

Smiles and handclaps.

Genuine appreciation of intent.

And this year the invitation to come was repeated, but for a longer period.

It is a great thing to go where hard work is done.

To know the men who are doing it.

To get their point of view.

To have their friendship.

And above all to have them want you to come again.

Songs of the Poets

Love and Life—By the Earl of Rochester

All my past life is mine no more;
The flying hours are gone,
Like transitory dreams given o'er,
Whose images are kept in store
By memory alone.

The time that is to come is not;
How can it then be mine?
The present moment's all my lot;
And that, as fast as it is got,
Phillis, is only thine.

Then talk not of inconstancy,
False hearts, and broken vows;
If I by miracle can be
This live-long minute true to thee,
'Tis all that Heaven allows.

CRYPTOMERIA

By DR. FRANK CRANE

CRYPTOMERIA is the name given to the tallest, largest and most majestic trees of Japan.

The cryptomeria is a kind of pine tree, or rather hemlock, at least it belongs to that family.

I found it in its most beautiful display at Nikko.

Nikko is a place about five hours by train north of Tokyo.

Here are the tombs of the great lords of former time and many temples are grouped around them.

These temples, blazing in their richness of barbaric coloring, gold and silver, red lacquered panels and floors, carved walls and gates covered with every form of nature and of dreams, ducks and cranes, birds of paradise, lions, elephants, twisting dragons, fantastic demons, all wrought with infinite labor, conceived by genius, and softened and mellowed by centuries of time,—these temples owe fully as much of their beauty to their natural surroundings as to their workmanship.

Back and above them rises the green mountain, and nothing ever lifted the soul of man as does the mountain.

It is Nature's Altar.

It is the Earth trying to reach Heaven.

It is the Finite yearning toward the Infinite.

It becomes therefore the most appropriate symbol of Mankind endeavoring to say "God."

And all around the gleaming temples and mausolea, ranging up the mountain-side and stretching away to the valley, stand these sentinel trees.

There is a sheer majesty in their upward sweep, straight as an arrow.

There is a shattering sense of power in them, for their trunks are massive, many of them twenty feet or more in circumference.

There is an overpowering dignity in their soldierly pose.

They overawe and impress one as does an army of soldiers, for they stand in thick ranks, and it is as if Nature here were parading her crack regiment, her King's Own, the very tallest and fittest of her troops.

Surely the noblest, most appropriate spot on earth for noble men and women to be buried.

Not that those buried here were really great, for it is to be feared they were far from it; but then the gesture of men's honor has always been finer than the object of their honor.

The fineness of loyalty is subjective.

OBSERVED AT A GLANCE

It is doubtful if Germany can find a dictator to lay down the law to Stinnes and his class.

The American Federation of Labor, not being composed of parlor pinks, hoots the idea of recognizing soviet Russia.

The pastor who seeks to evade payment of alimony by declaring his marriage illegal would get in bad with any sensitive flock.

Japan turned back a Russian relief ship, guided perhaps by the old warning against certain of those who "come bearing gifts."

A woman on trial for killing a man at Phoenix is reported as being unperturbed. Evidently she is aware of jury psychology.

Perhaps it is not that the people of Oklahoma endorse the ku klux but that they refrain from endorsing the governor.

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

TIPPING THE BALANCE

(Philadelphia Record)

A newspaper woman who has been writing up the steel mills remarked on the number of workers who came in their automobiles. A dispatch from the zinc mines in Illinois, where there has been a strike, spoke of most of the strikers coming back to work in automobiles. Accounts of Herrin last year remarked on the large parking space set aside for the automobiles of the miners. And now we learn from Evanston, Ill., seat of a great university, that wages of more than $100 a week paid to plasterers are diverting students from the gospel ministry, and a civil engineer with many degrees refused a professorship because he could make so much more money plastering.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Statistics are interesting sometimes, if one has the patience to read them, and the faith to believe them. The chronic statistician, however, is an offender against the truth. His figures may be correct, and yet he has trained them to perform singular feats.

In a mass of statistics touching the cost of living, but not explaining it, many articles are shown to be at more than double pre-war prices, but among the things to soar, the once humble potato is the soaringest. There can be no excuse for this. Many a farmer can't get enough for his potatoes to pay for digging them. If, inspired of hope, he takes the risk of digging them, he loses. He is a little better off when he leaves them in the ground to rot. The potato does its soaring later. Found on the vegetable stand, it is measured or weighed out as something rare and precious. The hawker acts as though he thought the product ought to be sold by troy weight.

The potato is dear because mortal has been monkeying, not with the law of supply and demand, but with the commodities with which this immutable law deals. The demand is certain; all there remains for the manipulator to do, is to cut down the supply. He does this by refusing to accept the offerings of the grower. He does not even pay a fair price for the portion he does accept. Then the potato begins the upward flight noted with so much pain by the family provider.

One of the principal arguments in favor of city parks, many and spacious, is the effect they may have in preventing fires, or in affording stations of refuge in case of a sweeping conflagration.

It was this fact that caused much of the opposition when there was an effort to destroy Pershing square in Los Angeles as a park, and utilize it as a building site for a library.

The statement has been made that one-third of all school children in this country are under-nourished and physically unfit. It would be important if true.

Meanwhile there is no doubt that some children do not get enough to eat, which, in a land of abundance, is a shameful thing to contemplate.

Turkey proposes to become a republic. While the plan is not the same as based on the constitution of the United States, it will be a wide departure from all that Turkey has known in the way of government. There will be an upper and lower house, the former to be appointed by the president of the republic. The presidential term is to be four or five years.

The inauguration of such a regime would be surprising, and the survival of a president for a term, even more so.

In a recent prize fight the referee gave the victory to one contestant, but after he had left the ring and the crowd, he changed his decision. His explanation was that members of the American Legion had forced him to give the first decision on peril of his life. This sort of talk won't go down. The chances are that if the Legion boys clamored for a decision favoring their man, it was because he had licked the other fellow.

Admiral Moffett, chief of the air service of the navy, was delighted with his ride in the ZR-1 from St. Louis to the east. He thinks that if the public understood the nature of the trip, and of the equipment making it possible, railroad stocks would tumble. His experiment was safe and comfortable.

While Moffett was captain, he was in command of the battleship Mississippi, long stationed at San Pedro. He made many friends here and he stood high in his profession. His views on aerial matter are likely to be taken without any grain of salt whatever.

The invention of an engine doubling the power derived from heat is announced. It is a most important industrial item. Doubtless engines relying on direct consumption of fuel will be used for a long time.

Indications are that the inventor some day will be able to proclaim that he has found the way to take energy direct from the atmosphere.

An English owner of oil wells in Russia, now visiting this state, says that the wells are profitable but not to him. The soviet government is operating them. It retains the habit of disregarding property rights.

Nevertheless he has hopes for Russia, based on its belief that it will have to abandon present methods.

Persons who salvaged property off the wrecked liner Cuba without authority, are to be arrested. There are certain restrictions as to the looting of a derelict.

Admiralty law is peculiar, however. Often when a steamer in distress is towed to safety, the brave rescuers demand a sum approximately the value of craft and cargo, with the dunnage of the crew and the uniform of the captain, to boot.

One city official of Fresno has turned state's evidence against another, with whom he asserts partnership in guilt.

Perhaps this is getting something off his chest, and easing his conscience a mite, but it is no way to win popularity.

OUR CHILDREN

By ANGELO PATRI

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS

It is time to remember Columbus again. Time to lay a wreath on the stone that carries his name. It's a wonderful thing to be the sort of person that has his name written on a stone and placed in the public square where it stands five hundred years after the day of his birth. Few names wear that long.

"Huh, Christopher Columbus discovered America. Somebody had to do it. America was lying there, waiting to be discovered!" scoffed a high school lad.

True enough! America was waiting to be discovered and somebody was bound to discover it. That's where Columbus came in. He was the one that did things.

There must have been thousands of sailors who sat on the shore and looked far out across the blue and wondered what lay beyond.

They must have dreamed all sorts of dreams about it, because an idea is never solely possessed. It is floating about in embryo, in a host of heads, with scarcely more than a hint of invitation to make itself at home and stay until it grows up.

But Christopher Columbus took the little idea in and fed it and played with it until it had grown so strong that it could carry him to fame and fortune and immortal success. There must have been thousands that could have done it, but he was the one who did it!

How about you, little Columbus sitting in your school bench and wondering what lies beyond? Are you taking in a "baby idea" and growing up with it? Do you know one when you see it? There are so many of them about now! It ought to be easy for you to catch one.

You won't have to struggle as hard as Columbus, perhaps. Things are easier now for the person who wants to try out his idea. Not much, of course; ideas always have a hard time getting themselves born—but just a little.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if you could grow the sort of spirit that carried Christopher Columbus on his lonely dangerous journey; made him strong enough to fight down discouragement and hatred and jealousy and ridicule?

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if you were to grow into the sort of person that could cross an unknown sea and keep up his own courage and have enough left to divide with a crew in mortal terror for their bodies and souls?

Wouldn't it be great to be the sort of person who could step out of the group of wondering, dreaming folk on the bench and say, "Something lies out yonder for me. I'm going to go and see what it is. There's a big job ahead of me and I'm going to do it."

Wouldn't it be great to be the sort of person who did things of such size and weight that they lasted five hundred years and were written on tables of stone in the market place? Why not?

FLOOR PLAN NO. 1627

You'll like this home plan because it's different.

While the exterior is shown in stucco it would be equally as attractive built of frame or brick. The landscape windows in front offer a wonderful view from living and dining room, and the corner covered porch is used as a combination recreation and entry.

Three well arranged bed rooms make this home practical for a large family—the bath room is spacious and by means of a convenient hall offers direct connection to the main rooms. In the kitchen and on the back screened-in porch every conceivable labor and time-saving convenience is included; in fact, nothing has been omitted or overlooked which would make this a real home.

FOUNDERS' DAY CELEBRATION AT POMONA COLLEGE

CLAREMONT, Calif., Oct. 9.—That fall day in October, thirty-six years ago, which marked the beginning of Pomona College, was a significant day for higher education, not only in Southern California, but in the entire educational world. Two years ago that day was set apart for the annual gatherings of Pomona College Alumni as a "Founders' Day Around the World."

The first year of the celebration, 1921, six Alumni clubs joined in its observation. In 1922 this number had increased to nine, and the present year, when the celebration will be held on October 13, because of the 14th falling on Sunday, sixteen alumni gatherings stretching from the Pacific to the Atlantic coast will join in this "Universal Pomona Day."

The purpose of this Founders' Day celebration is to keep alive the interest of the 1511 alumni and to renew and maintain the interest of the 3300 ex-students in the present and future welfare of the college. The alumni are scattered over thirty-nine states, the Hawaiian Islands and eight foreign countries, including Mexico, Turkey, India, Japan, China, Italy, Asia Minor and the Balkan countries. Of the first thousand graduates of Pomona College, sixty entered foreign service, largely in missionary and educational work. In all these outposts of Pomona, her loyal sons and daughters, in spirit, will be celebrating this Universal day.

The organizations at the following places will hold formal gatherings at which the old friendships will be cemented, the old victories recalled and new inspirations imparted for the future: New York City, Cambridge, Mass., Washington, D. C., Waikiki Beach, Honolulu, Evanston, Ill., and in California at San Diego, Santa Paula, Los Angeles, Berkeley, Highland, Tulare, Big Pine, Santa Barbara, Long Beach, Santa Ana and Claremont. At each gathering an address, will be given by some prominent alumnus of the college or some member of the faculty. A distinctive feature of the celebration at every place will be the "Ceremony of the Flame," which will precede the reading of the Greetings from the senior class and the president of the college. The "Ceremony of the Flame" was instituted at the first Founders' day celebration held on October 14, 1921. It was inaugurated in commemoration of the founders of this institution and in symbolism of the spreading spirit of service which is increasingly being carried to the far reaches of the earth by the loyal sons and daughters of Pomona. A year ago the alumni residents in the immediate vicinity of the college observed Founders' day at the Casa Blanca hotel, at Ontario, Calif. At this gathering, Dr. Charles B. Sumner, the founder of Pomona college, still living and active as a member of the board of trustees, lighted twenty-five large candles. One of these candles goes to each club and will be lighted each year by the oldest alumni present, and from this, other candles used in the Flame ceremony will be lighted. The same large candle will be used each year and it is estimated that the candles of the Flame ceremony will receive the torch of fire from the candle originally lighted by Dr. Sumner for the next fifty years.

The college which thirty-five years ago began so humbly in a single frame building, with only nine acres of campus and seven teachers, with resources so small as to be negligible, and with only eleven in the first graduating class, has developed until today it comprises twenty buildings, one hundred and fifty acres of campus, a faculty of seventy, and graduated at its last commencement one hundred and forty-six students. "A Miracle in a Desert" has been wrought during this period, and today Pomona has become "A College in a Garden." Over its beautiful campus and splendid buildings the San Antonio range of mountains keeps constant guard, and even as "Old Baldy" towers above the lesser mountains of the range, so Pomona men and women stand out above the lower ranges of society in which they are working out the problems of a better order. Even as the candle light at the "Ceremony of the Flame" points upward so "The flame of their lives burns upward."

Next morning Taffy received two letters: one, a very long one, was from Mrs. Bagot. He read it twice over, and was forced to acknowledge that it was a very good letter—the letter of a clever, warm-hearted woman, but a woman also whose son was to her as the very apple of her eye. One felt she was ready to say her dearest friend alive in order to make Little Billie a pair of gloves out of the skin, if he wanted a pair; but one also felt she would be genuinely sorry for the friend. Taffy's own mother had been a little like that, and he missed her every day of his life.

Full justice was done by Mrs. Bagot to all Trilby's qualities of head and heart and person; but at the same time she pointed out, with all the cunning and ingeniously casuistic logic of her sex, when it takes to special pleading (even when it has right on its side), what the consequences of such a marriage must inevitably be in a few years—even sooner! The quick disenchantment, the life-long regret, on both sides!

He could not have found a word to controvert her arguments, save perhaps in his own private belief that Trilby and Little Billie were both exceptional people; and how could he hope to know Little Billie's nature better than the boy's own mother!

And if he had been the boy's elder brother in blood, as he already was in art and affection, would he, should he, could he, have given his fraternal sanction to such a match?

Both as his friend and his brother he felt it was out of the question.

The other letter was from Trilby, in her bold, careless handwriting, that sprawled all over the page, and her occasionally imperfect spelling. It ran thus:

"My dear, dear Taffy,—This is to say good-bye. I'm going away, to put an end to all this misery, for which nobody's to blame but myself.

"The very moment after I'd said yes to Little Billie I knew perfectly well what a stupid fool I was, and I've been ashamed of myself ever since. I had a miserable week, I can tell you. I knew how it would all turn out.

"I am dreadfully unhappy, but not half so unhappy as if I married him and he were ever to regret me and be ashamed of me; and of course he would, really, even if he didn't show it—good and kind as he is—an angel!

"Besides—of course I could never be a lady—how could I?—though I ought to have been one, I suppose. But everything seems to have gone wrong with me, though I never found it out before—and it can't be righted!

"Poor papa!

"I am going away with Jeannot. I've been neglecting him shamefully. I mean to make up for it all now.

"You mustn't try and find out where I am going; I know you won't if I beg you, nor any one else. It would make everything so much harder for me.

"Angie knows; she has promised me not to tell. I should like to have a line from you very much. If you send it to her she will send it on to me.

"Dear Taffy, next to Little Billie, I love you and the Laird better than any one else in the whole world. I've never known real happiness till I met you. You have changed me into another person—you and Sandy and Little Billie.

"Oh, it has been a jolly time, though it didn't last long. It will have to do for me for life. So good-bye. I shall never, never forget; and remain, with dearest love, your ever faithful and most affectionate friend.

"TRILBY O'FERRALL.

"P.S.—When it has all blown over and settled again, if it ever does, I shall come back to Paris, perhaps, and see you again some day."

The good Taffy pondered deeply over this letter—read it half a dozen times at least; and then he kissed it, and put it back into its envelope and locked it up.

He knew what very deep anguish underlay this somewhat trivial expression of her sorrow.

He guessed how Trilby, so childishly impulsive and demonstrative in the ordinary intercourse of friendship, would be more reticent than most women in such a case as this.

He wrote to her warmly, affectionately, at great length, and sent the letter as she had told him.

The Laird also wrote a long letter full of tenderly worded friendship and sincere regard. Both expressed their hope and belief that they would soon see her again; when the first bitterness of her grief would be over, and that the old pleasant relations would be renewed.

And then, feeling wretched, they went and silently lunched together at the Cafe de l'Odeon, where the omelets were good and the wine wasn't blue.

Late that evening they sat together in the studio, reading. They found they could not talk to each other very readily without Little Billie to listen—three's company sometimes and two's none!

Suddenly there was a tremendous getting up the dark stairs outside in a violent hurry, and Little Billie burst into the room like a small whirlwind—haggard, out of breath, almost speechless at first with excitement.

"Trilby? where is she? . . . What's become of her? . . . She's run away . . . oh! She's written me such a letter! . . . We were to have been married . . . at the Embassy . . . my mother . . . she's been meddling; and that cursed old ass that beast . . . my uncle! They've been here! I know all about it . . . Why didn't you stick up for her? . . . I did . . . as well as I could. Sandy couldn't stand it, and cut."

"You stuck up for her . . . you—why, you agreed with my mother that she oughtn't to marry me—you—your false friend—your . . . Why, she's an angel—far too good for the likes of me . . . you know she is. As . . . as for her social position and all that, what's degrading rot! Her father was as much a gentleman as mine . . . besides . . . what the devil do I care for her father? . . . It's her I want—her—her, I tell you! . . . I can't live without her . . . I must have her back—I must have her back . . . do you hear? We were to have lived together at Barbizon . . . all our lives—and I was to have painted stunning pictures . . . like those other fellows there. Who cares for their social position, I should like to know! . . . or that of their wives? Damn social position! . . . we've often said so—over and over again. An artist's life should be away from the world—above all that meanness and paltriness . . . all in his work. Social position, indeed! Over and over again we've said what feticid, bestial rot it all was—a thing to make one sick and shut one's self away from the world . . . Why say one thing and act another? . . . Love comes before all—love levels all—love and art . . . and beauty—before such beauty as Trilby's rank doesn't exist. Such rank as mine, too! Good God! I'll never paint another stroke till I've got her back . . . never, never, I tell you—I can't—I won't! . . .

And so the poor boy went on, tearing and raving about in his rampage, knocking over chairs and easels, stammering and shrieking, mad with excitement.

They tried to reason with him, to make him listen, to point out that it was not her social position alone that unfitted her to be his wife and the mother of his children, etc.

It was no good. He grew more and more uncontrollable, became almost unintelligible, he stammered so—a pitiable sight and pitiable to hear.

"Oh! oh! good heavens! are you two so precious immaculate, you two, that you should throw stones at poor Trilby! What a shame, what a hideous shame it is that there should be one law for the woman and another for the man! . . . poor weak women—poor, soft, affectionate things that beasts of men are always running after and pestering and ruining and trampling underfoot . . . Oh! oh! it makes me sick—it makes me sick! . . . And finally he gasped and screamed and fell down in a fit on the floor.

The doctor was sent for; Taffy went in a cab to the Hotel de Lille et d'Albion to fetch his mother; and poor Little Billie, quite unconscious was undressed by Sandy and Madame Vinard and put into the Laird's bed.

The doctor came, and not long after Mrs. Bagot and her daughter. It was a serious case. Another doctor was called in. Beds were got and made up in the studio for the two grief-stricken ladies, and thus closed the eve of what was to have been poor Little Billie's wedding-day, it seems.

Little Billie's attack appears to have been a kind of epileptic seizure. It ended in brain-fever and other complications—a long and tedious illness. It was many weeks before he was out of danger, and his convalescence was long and tedious too.

His nature seemed changed. He lay languid and listless—never even mentioned Trilby, except once to ask if she had come back, and if any one knew where she was, and if she had been written to. She had not, it appears. Mrs. Bagot had thought it was better not, and Taffy and the Laird agreed with her that no good could come of writing.

Mrs. Bagot felt bitterly against the woman who had been the cause of all this trouble, and bitterly against herself for her injustice. It was an unhappy time for every body.

There was more unhappiness still to come.

One day in February Madame Angele Boisse called on Taffy and the Laird in the temporary studio where they worked. She was in terrible tribulation.

Trilby's little brother had died of scarlet-fever and was buried, and Trilby had left her hiding-place the day after the funeral and had never come back, and this was a week ago. She and Jeannot had been living at a village called Vibraye, in la Sarthe, lodging with some poor people she knew—she was washing and working with her needle till her brother fell ill.

She had never left his bedside for a moment, night or day, and when he died her grief was so terrible that people thought she would go out of her mind and the day after he was buried she was not to be found anywhere—she had disappeared, taking nothing with her, not even her clothes—simply vanished and left no sign, no message of any kind.

All the ponds had been searched—all the wells, and the small stream that flows through Vibraye—and the old forest.

Taffy went to Vibraye, cross-examined everybody he could, communicated with the Paris police, but with no result, and every afternoon, with a beating heart, he went to the Morgue.

The news was of course kept from Little Billie. There was no difficulty about this. He never asked a question, hardly ever spoke.

When he first got up and was carried into the studio he asked for his picture "The Pitcher Goes to the Well," and looked at it for a while, and then shrugged his shoulders and laughed—a miserable sort of laugh, painful to hear—the laugh of a cold old man, who laughs so as not to cry! Then he looked at his mother and sister, and saw the sad havoc that grief and anxiety had wrought in them.

It seemed to him, as in a bad dream, that he had been mad for many years—a cause of endless sickening terror and distress; and that his poor weak wandering wits had come back at last, bringing in their train cruel remorse, and the remembrance of all the patient love and kindness that had been lavished on him for many years! His sweet sister—his dear, long-suffering mother! what had really happened to make them look like this?

And, taking them both in his feeble arms, he fell a-weeping, quite desperately and for a long time.

And when his weeping fit was over, when he had quite wept himself out, he fell asleep.

And when he awoke he was conscious that another sad thing had happened to him, and that for some mysterious cause his power of loving had not come back with his wandering wits—had been left behind—and it seemed to him that it was gone for ever and ever—would never come back again—not even his love for his mother and sister, not even his love for Trilby, where all that had once been a void, a gap, a blankness.

Truly, if Trilby had suffered much, she had also been the innocent cause of terrible suffering. Poor Mrs. Bagot, in her heart, could not forgive her.

I feel this is getting to be quite a sad story, and that it is high time to cut this part of it short.

As the warmer weather came, and Little Billie got stronger, the studio became more pleasant. The ladies' beds were removed to another studio on the next landing, which was vacant, and the friends came to see Little Billie, and make it more lively for him and his sister.

As for Taffy and the Laird, they had already long been to Mrs. Bagot as a pair of crutches, without whose invaluable help she could never have held herself upright to pick her way in all this maze of trouble.

Then M. Carrel came every day to chat with his favorite pupil and gladden Mrs. Bagot's heart. And also Durien, Carnegie, Petrollococose, Vincent, Antony, Lorrimer, Dodor, and L'Zouze; Mrs. Bagot thought the last two irresistible, when she had once been satisfied that they were "gentlemen," in spite of appearances. And, indeed, they showed themselves to great advantage; and though they were so much the opposite to Little Billie in everything, she felt almost maternal towards them, and gave them innocent, good, motherly advice, which they swallowed avidly, and attended, not even stealing a look at each other. And they held Mrs. Bagot's wool, and listened to Miss Bagot's sacred music with upturned pious eyes, and mealy mouths that butter wouldn't melt in!

LEGION NEWS

For God and Country, we associate ourselves together for the following purposes: To uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States of America; to maintain law and order; to foster and perpetuate one hundred per cent Americanism; to preserve the memories and incidents of our association in the Great War; to inculcate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and nation; to combat the autocracy of both the classes and the masses; to make right the master of might; to promote peace and good will on earth; to safeguard and transmit to posterity the principles of justice, freedom and democracy; to consecrate and sanctify our comradeship by our devotion to mutual helpfulness.—Preamble to the Constitution of the American Legion.

Commander Chalmers Day states that a sixty-day $500 option on the American Legion property at Campbell and Mountain streets of approximately two acres, for $20,000, has been granted by Post trustees to a Santa Monica broker, Roland R. Speer, on behalf of a client, subject to ratification by the Glendale Post Friday night, which it is believed will be granted unanimously. The deal was made through the real estate office of Charles Guthrie on Broadway. The property is in a rapidly developing fine residence section and the price is considered a good one.

The Post purchased several months ago a house and lot on South Maryland between Harvard and Broadway which rents for enough to carry the expense of the property. It has already advanced in value and the Post is sitting tight, believing it will make further gains.

Mr. Speer, who secured the option, is a past commander of the Santa Monica Post and a member of the "Society of Forty" and "Eight." This is a sort of higher order of the American Legion to which only those in good standing in the Legion are eligible. To be long one must have done something worthy of note for the Legion.

At the meeting of the Post Friday night the option will be reported for action at a short business session and an adjournment will then be taken by legionnaires.

their wives and families, to the Eagle Rock Post, which is entertaining the Glendale organization that night.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9.—Determined to eclipse any reunion ever given by a veteran organization in the United States, committees numbering over five hundred former members of the 91st (Wild West) division are today at work completing details for the monster get-together of that famous wartime division which will be held in San Francisco Saturday and Sunday, October 13 and 14.

Indications point to an attendance of over six thousand of these veterans who received their baptism of fire in the Meuse-Argonne offensive in France and also participated in the St. Mihiel and Lys-Scheidt operations as part of the First American army during the World war.

The main feature of the reunion is to be the divisional dinner in the civic auditorium on Saturday evening, October 13.

On this occasion nearly four thousand vets will be served at one sitting, making it the largest indoor banquet ever held on the Pacific coast. The number of waiters hired for the affair would be sufficient to make up a wartime company of infantry.

Entertainment composed of acts from nearly all of San Francisco's theaters will be interspersed with special stunts by versatile members of the division.

Mail orders for tickets, which will be $3 per plate for this affair, may be placed with J. M. Cahen, chairman banquet committee, 19 Kearny street, San Francisco.

The following is the full program for the reunion as announced by the committee today:

Saturday, October 13
9:00 a. m. to 7:30 p. m.—Registration of former members of 91st division at Municipal auditorium, Civic Center.

12:30 p. m.—Meeting of executive committee; luncheon parties.

7:00 p. m.—Divisional dinner—all units of division—in main hall, Municipal auditorium.

During the day, sight-seeing trips and automobile rides will be operated for benefit of those desiring to see the city. Informal gatherings and get-together meetings will be held.

Sunday, October 14
9:00 a. m. to 7:00 p. m.—Sight-seeing trips for visitors.

11:00 a. m.—Business meeting of various regimental and unit organizations.

12:30 p. m. to 1:30 p. m.—Organizational in Municipal auditorium.

ADVANTAGE OF THE FARM - RAISED DOG

Dogs are always in demand, especially the sporting breeds, and any one who takes up the work of breeding can soon experience a very profitable business. Consequently, the farmer who loves dogs and enjoys the training of them, can easily find a market for his surplus stock, for it is well known by field-trail enthusiasts as well as city sportsmen, that dogs brought up in the country have the advantage over the kennel-bred products. In the first place, from puppyhood on up, they are in the environment that nature intended them, and their freedom is limitless, and even when they are very young they go out on hunts with the mother, and naturally this teaches them early in life to hunt themselves. They gain a knowledge of the woods and fields, and by actual experience, soon understand where they should go to find game. To fully understand the better development of the farm-raised dog, a person only needs to take one on a hunt in company with a kennel-bred dog of the same age. It will be noted at once that the former shows a wisdom far superior to the one of lesser experience, his confidence, and knowing what he should do is easy to discern because of the fact that his constant association with the outdoors have produced lessons that are never forgotten. On the other hand, the kennel-bred dog does not know what to do, for the simple reason that this kind of work has never been in the line of his experience. Everything is new and strange to him, and naturally, the poor little fellow is at a great disadvantage. By this it can easily be seen why the sportsmen prefer the farm-raised dog. He has not only been brought up properly, but his physical as well as mental development took place under natural conditions. Also in purchasing one of these, the lover of the field has no training worries and can go to the woods at once and gain considerable enjoyment in shooting over him.—Sportsman's Digest.

CONTAGIOUS

With all a six-year-old's familiarity with measles, chicken pox and colds, Bobbie emerged from a siege of whooping cough much the worse for wear. The first item of interesting news he received was that his aunt was at a hospital and that there was a new baby he would be allowed to go to see soon.

"And see Aunt May, too?" he asked incredulously.

"Of course. Why not?"

"But, mother," fearfully. "Will I catch it?"—American Legion Weekly.

HUMPTY DUMPTY STORY; PLANS FOR CHILDREN'S CIRCUS TO BE TOLD

Plans for the Humpty Dumpty circus, which will delight the children of Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank on the 19th and 20th of this month are going forward rapidly according to an announcement today by Ray L. Law, the originator and producer. The big show will be held in Glendale. Arrangements are being made so that every child will be given an opportunity to attend the circus—every ring of it—and every feature will be clean and wholesome, just the kind that reaches right to the child's heart. There will be freaks, curiosities, numerous clowns, acrobats, magicians and the strangest, queerest menagerie in all the world. It is rumored that Humpty Dumpty is writing a letter which will be a personal invitation to every child to attend. This note should arrive in Glendale not later than tomorrow, and will be directed to all the children in Glendale, Eagle Rock and Burbank. A great surprise is in store for all those who watch the columns of this paper.

ENGLISH AT HOME
"When I was cycling through England," writes R. B. W., "I started off one morning to ride from Clacton to St. Osyth. After a while I became uncertain about the road and meeting a laborer I inquired, 'Am I right for St. Osyth?' The man looked puzzled and said he never heard of any such place. "A second wayfarer, whom I asked was equally ignorant. Then came a third. This fellow scratched his head, but presently a look of comprehension dawned upon his face. 'Ay, to be sure, I have it now—it's Snosey ye mean!'"—New Haven Register.

C. OF C. TO DISCUSS BRIDGE LOCATION
The chief theme of discussion at the meeting of directors of the Chamber of Commerce this evening is expected to be the proposed new bridge across the Los Angeles river and where it shall be located. Mr. Barnes of Hollywood, president of the Santa Monica Boulevard association, will urge the building of a bridge at Ivanhoe first, believing it is more urgently needed than a new bridge on Los Feliz boulevard. Before going on record, chamber directors expect to hear the matter thoroughly threshed out.

JUDGE CHASE HAS THREE CASES IN COURT TODAY

In the court of Judge Harry W. Chase this morning a hearing was had in the case of the Automobile Finance company of Los Angeles vs. J. J. Schulte of Glendale. The action was brought to recover an automobile purchased by the defendant on a contract, and damages. Judgment was given for the plaintiff against the defendant for the possession of the auto and $10.40 costs.

Monday the case of L. Wesley Squier & Son, house-movers of Van Nuys, against P. J. Alvarado of this city, was heard. It involved a dispute in regard to the compensation for the moving of a house, for which the plaintiffs claimed $200, the defendants insisting that the agreement called for $25. Plaintiffs testified that the house was to be moved, under the agreement, only eight inches. As a matter of fact it was moved eight feet and eight inches. Defendant was equally insistent that under the agreement it was to be moved anywhere on the lot designated by defendant for $25. The lot is in the 700 block on West Wilson. Judgment has not yet been rendered by Judge Chase. This afternoon a hearing will be granted on an action brought by Henry Walms as assignee for Marjorie D. Spencer to recover the sum of $90, alleged to have been advanced by Marjorie D. Spencer to Dennis Cook, defendant, in the purchase of the Crown cafe; also for various sums advanced by said Marjorie D. Spencer for escrow charges, rent, water, gas and electric bills.

WHY TELEPHONE IS MOST HUMAN PUBLIC UTILITY

The telephone has rightly been called the most human of the public utilities. No other product of art or science enters more intimately into the lives of the American people. Although they may never have seen each other, the telephone subscriber and the telephone operator are brought into contact many times a day.

Everybody who uses a telephone knows this. But not everybody knows, or has stopped to consider the importance of the aggregate of these contacts throughout a nation-wide communication organization such as the Bell System.

Completed local telephone calls in the United States average something like 53,300,000 daily. Completed long distance or toll calls increase this number by about 1,700,000. Each of these calls is made up of several contacts between operator and subscriber. That some of these operations do not result in completed calls is not due to inefficiency in the telephone organization.

Based upon carefully compiled reports a tabulation of the average monthly total of these contacts has been made by a Bell System statistician. It affords a surprising sidelight on the extent of the telephone business in the United States. Here are some of the interesting facts disclosed:

The total number of original orders for local calls received from subscribers, per month, is 1,300,000. On 120,000,000 of these it is necessary to report busy lines. Reports that the called subscriber does not answer total 26,000,000. Reports that the operator is ringing for called subscriber number 52,000,000. They are an unavoidable part of the total telephone work and must be included as part of the expense of giving service.

Requests for a deposit of a coin and verifying called number on post payment coin box calls number 13,000,000 each.

Asking the party line letter on party line message rate calls total 26,000,000 and asking for toll calls not handled by long distance operators (known as A-B toll service), 30,000,000.

In other words, the total routine contacts, on local and A-B toll calls, number 1,580,000,000. To these must be added special contacts on local and A-B toll service, such as recalls, giving out information, and receiving and acting on complaints and requests for special attention, to the number of 221,000,000. This brings the grand total of all monthly contacts, on local service and A-B toll calls, up to 1,801,000,000.

Taking original orders for toll or long distance calls accounts for 17,000,000 contacts. Here are other totals: Receiving requests for reports on calls from subscriber or his report of readiness to talk, 3,400,000. Announcing to subscriber that his call is ready or giving him an initial report of the call, 17,000,000. Announcing the call or reporting to called station, 23,000,000. Requests for rates or other special information, 1,100,000. This gives a monthly total on toll or long distance calls of 61,500,000 contacts between the subscriber and the operator and brings the total of all contacts, local and long distance, up to 1,862,500,000.

GOOD-BY

Good-by! I wonder who was first
To say that homely, sweet farewell.
Good-by! Oft formally rehearsed,
But sometimes with the surge and swell
Of breaking hearts that hurt and pain,
And tears that fall like Summer rain.

Good-by! The boy is leaving home.
The daughter is a bride and wife.
Good-by! The time comes when we roam
And take our parts in work and life.
So goes the world. From out the nest
The fledgling flies, North, East, South, West.

Good-by! A thousand years ago
Some sweetheart said it with a cry
Of sorrow, and some lover slow
To part, heard it with misted eye.
Good-by! A sob and tear and then
We know not when we meet again.

Good-by! A blessing and a prayer,
A benediction and good will.
And you go here and I go there,
By wood and valley, dale and hill.
Good-by! Good-cheer! Good-luck! And then
God grant we all may meet again!

COMING—"THE MIDNIGHT ALARM"

AT THE THEATRES

DIRECTOR HAS ART OF MAKING PICTURE LIVE

"Rotten shift, life is," now murmured the Honorable George quite as if he had forgotten me. "If I'd have but put through that Monte Carlo affair I dare say I'd have chucked the whole business—gone to South Africa, perhaps, and set up a mine or a plantation. Shouldn't have come back. Just cut off, and said goodbye to this mess. But no capital. Can't do things without capital. Where these American Johnnies have the pull over us. Do anything. Nearly do what they jolly well like to. No sense to money. Stuff that, runs blind. Look at the silly beggars that have it—" On he went quite alarmingly with his tirade. Presently he quieted. After a long pull at his pipe he regarded me with an entire change in manner. Well, I knew something was coming; coming as swift as a rocketing woodcock. Word for word I put down our incredible speeches.

"You are going out to America, Ruggles."
"Yes, sir; North or South, sir."
"North, I fancy; somewhere on the west coast—Ohio, Omaha, one of those Indian places."
"Perhaps Indiana or the Yellowstone Valley, sir?"
"The chap's a sort of millionaire."

"Ruggles of Red Gap" which the above gives an idea of is the wonderful feature film now on at the Gateway theater.

RENEE ADOREE GETS BLACK EYE FILMING SCENE

Renee Adoree, the brilliant actress, who plays the leading role in "The Eternal Struggle," the Metro-Louis B. Mayer photoplay which is still showing at the Glendale theater, suffered an unusual accident during the filming of this picture in Hollywood.

Ed J. Brady, villain of "The Eternal Struggle," was rehearsing a scene with Miss Adoree prior to "shooting" it and Reginald Barker, the director, called for realistic action. In this scene also was Anders Randolph in the role of a villainous ship captain. In the act of losing a blow at Mr. Randolph, according to Mr. Barker's instructions, Mr. Brady slipped and accidentally hit Miss Adoree plum in the eye. It gave three doctors a day's work, the cast a full day's holiday, and Miss Adoree's eye was in mourning for a week.

"RUGGLES OF RED GAP" AGAIN TODAY AT THE GATEWAY

One of the most difficult things in the motion picture art is to secure that intangible quality which lifts a play above mere artistic perfection, and makes it "live." It is the same thing that in the army may be called "morale," in music "soul."

Perhaps in no picture ever made by Universal has this thing been more evident than in "Merry-Go-Round," which Rupert Julian directed with an all-star cast including Mary Philbin, Maude George, Dale Fuller, Norman Kerry, Cesare Gravina and others.

The spirit of good fellowship, of electrifying gaiety, has been captured by the crowds of merry-makers thronging the big Prater set which is a faithful reproduction of the amusement part of Vienna. It is never an easy thing to get this quality, and it was not injected at will into "Merry-Go-Round." A hundred little carefully built-up details have gone into its making—the fidelity with which the atmosphere of the Prater has been captured, the care spent in the characterizations and costuming—but back of all this, is something deeper, more vital. You will understand it when you see the picture at the T. D. and L. theater.
